500 Enemy Killed in Big Battle

By ROBERT TUCKMAN
SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Two U.S. Marine platoons held out for four hours against waves of North Vietnamese troops just south of the 17th Parallel Monday while covering the withdrawal of the rest of their battalion.

The bloody fight cost the enemy about 500 dead or wounded, one Marine officer estimated. The 90 or so Leathernecks took heavy casualties but stood up against the overwhelmingly larger force until air and artillery strikes drove the North Vietnamese off.

Marine fighter-bombers dropped napalm as close as 50 feet from the Leatherneck positions to prevent them being overrun. Some Marines were injured in the strikes.

The savage fight was the bitterest action yet in Operation Hastings, which last weekend brought thousands of Marines and South Vietnamese troops into the steamy mountains more than 400 miles northeast of Saigon in search of a North Vietnamese division which allied intelligence says recently crossed the demilitarized zone division between the two Viet Nams.

Despite the heavy losses to the two platoons, U.S. headquarters in Saigon said allied casualties remained light overall since the sweep began Friday. The official number of enemy killed rose to 226, up 58 from Monday's report. The Marines have captured three North Vietnamese and 68 weapons, the spokesman said.

Says Pilots to Be Tried as Criminals

PARIS (AP) — The French News Agency said in a dispatch from Peking that the North Vietnamese ambassador declared today captured U.S. pilots will be tried as war criminals.

The agency's correspondent quoted Ambassador Tran Du Vinh as making the statement at a news conference.

The ambassador told newsmen that the American pilots had never been considered by North Viet Nam as prisoners of war. Therefore they did not come under the Geneva Convention which would prevent their being put on trial, he added.

The ambassador gave no indication as to when the trials would begin, but he added that the pilots' fate would be left up to the Vietnamese people.

Anonymous Call Brings Change

BRISBANE, Australia (AP) — British Prince Charles switched planes today after an anonymous telephone caller told airline officials there was a bomb aboard the commercial plane he was to board.

Officials searched the plane when it touched down and found no bomb. But they took no chances and provided a special plane to take the prince to Melbourne in a single session. They would settle on a hard-core school budget — and then initiate a campaign to raise property assessments to bring in the revenue necessary.

It's only what your editor and this newspaper have been pointing out for years.

Money? You can't take it with you, and while here on earth it would be better citizenship to give it to the local schools than let some grease-ball from Washington steal it from you.

This I believe in.

This I will spend money for and have done so, as evidenced by two state-wide petitions and an attack on the Internal Revenue Service which I carried through the United States Supreme Court.

But if you're lazy or weak or cowardly, don't bother me — get yourself another newspaper. I'll still be running this one.

Officials said the present five-mill tax for capital improvements would support the bond issue.

Special Recognition

Linda Reese, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Reese, received a gold watch from Blanch Randolph, Extension Food and Nutrition Specialist, for winning first place at the State 4-H Club Activity Day in Little Rock, July 14. Linda was the highest scoring individual in the Food and Nutrition Activity with her demonstration "Is Your Food Becoming to You." Miss Reese is a senior member of the Shover Springs 4-H Club.

Approximately 850 4-H Club members participated in 26 competitive activities. Hempstead County was represented well by seven 4-H'ers. Lorena Arrington tied for third place in the Home Furnishing Activity, Fredia Middlebrooks placed in the top six of the Formal Division of the Dress Revue. James Rowe placed 2nd in the District Tractor Driving Contest. Others representing the county with results not yet tabulated were Brenda Embry, piano solo in the Share-the-Fun Activity; Gary Wheeler crop judging and seed identification; Dwayne Arrington, Livestock Grading.

Those accompanying 4-H'ers were Sharon Green, Extension Employee College Work-Study Program; Calvin Caldwell, County Agent; Dolores McBride, Home Demonstration Agent.

Cattlemen to Meet on Thursday

The Hempstead County Cattlemen's Association will meet at 7:00 on Thursday night, July 21 according to C. B. Garrett, president. The meeting will be held on the Spencer Tract of the Southwest Branch Experiment Station at the work shed area. This will be that part of the Spencer Tract on the right side of Highway 67 as you go east from Hope.

Dr. Carl Lueker, Extension Animal Husbandman from Little Rock, will be our guest speaker. He will present some educational information on pregnancy testing of cattle and then give a demonstration on the actual testing.

This program should be of interest to all beef cattle producers in the county.

Turns Down Offer From El Toro

EL TORO, Calif. (AP) — Pic. Daniel Rombyer has turned down a chance to spend his first day of leave home from Viet Nam in El Toro, the city from which he was sent a Christmas package of dogfood.

Rombyer got the dogfood while in Viet Nam along with an unsigned message from a critic of the war: "Eat well animal."

The city, seeking to make amends, played host last week to the Marine's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Rombyer, and had invited Pfc. Rombyer to spend a week. City officials, the Chamber of Commerce and a beauty queen waited Sunday but Rombyer didn't show up.

Officials said Rombyer's parents reported he wanted to get home as quickly as possible to Jackson, Mich.

Racial Riots Break Out in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Gunfire punctuated rioting in a predominantly Negro neighborhood on Cleveland's East Side early today, leaving a 26-year-old woman dead and two men with minor bullet wounds.

Gangs made up mostly of teenage boys hurled fire bombs and smashed and looted stores.

More than 300 policemen — directed from a command post bus and aided by a helicopter — were involved in the six-hour effort to bring the widely scattered disturbance under control.

Three policemen were hit by bricks and rocks and treated at a nearby hospital for injuries that were not serious.

Police and newsmen reported they were shot at by snipers in the Hough area.

Police shot out street lights in the vicinity of East 75th and Hough to keep from being targets and ordered all occupants out of an apartment building there in a vain effort to find a sniper.

At least eight fires broke out — some started by fire bombs — and firemen trying to fight the flames were shot at and had to dodge bottles, fire bombs and rocks, police reported.

A gang of men cut a fire hose near 86th Street, where half a block of two-story brick and frame store buildings burned.

Firemen were called off twice because of interference but returned to put out the flames. They were aided by a brief, early morning rain. The rain also helped police clear the streets.

Killed by gunfire was Joyce Arnett, mother of three. A witness said Mrs. Arnett had been ordered into a building as police sought to clear the 73rd Street-Hough intersection and was shot as she leaned out a second-floor window and screamed for her children.

Mayor Believes New School Ruling Will Ruin Washington

The Federal government has ordered Washington School District to stop sending its white students to Hope High School and to send them to the all-Negro Lincoln High School of Washington.

In the following letter Mayor W. H. Etter of Washington explains his fear of what will result if the plan is carried out.

Editor Hope Star: The directive which has come down from the U.S. Department of Education in the nation's capital as it applies to the public schools of Washington (Arkansas) can in the final analysis result in but one thing — the destruction of the community.

This is no argument for or against integration—as such. It is beside the point whether the schools are integrated or segregated, but it is very much to the point whether a community lives or dies. And when an order comes down which can in effect accomplish the latter, it is certainly my duty as an officer of the town to protest such an order and to make every effort to have it rescinded or modified.

For more than 35 years now high school students in Washington and Ozark communities have been attending Hope High School (the writer being a graduate with the class of 1929). For some 15 or 20 years the Washington District which includes Ozark has been sending high school students to Hope High. Before then we had to make our own arrangements. Now, in mid-July 1966, and after all patrons had exercised complete freedom of choice as prescribed by the self-same people and been duly assigned to the school of their choice, the powers holding the purse strings to federal funds, decree that henceforth high school students of the district currently attending Hope High School (10 members of the next year's senior class are affected) as well as all future high school students will attend the only high school maintained in the district, the Lincoln High School. Furthermore, that the Hope district will be prohibited from accepting any of these students under penalty of withholding of federal funds.

Washington (D.C.) education officials may make people send their children to the high school nearest their home, but at least not yet can they prevent them from moving home to a place nearer their preferred school. And that is what my protest is all about. In order to carry out their directives the Washington (D.C.) officials will cause the removal from Washington (Arkansas) of practically all white families having high or pre-high school children; and ultimately they will accomplish nothing they have set out to do, but will only have succeeded in moving out the effective leadership of a community.

The Washington district is a model of racial relations. For many years, long before it became a national issue, the majority of school funds were spent on Negro education facilities. Lincoln High School is thoroughly modern plant, and no building is more than 20 years old. By comparison the small Washington elementary School is housed in the former Hempstead County Courthouse built in 1874. Negro and white teachers' salaries have for years been equal, and 10 times as much money has been spent on Negro education as white. The entire bond issue for the district is for Negro facilities.

But, in spite of the excellence of the Lincoln School, the families of the community who are affected will defy the order in the only way they know how, by moving to the vicinity of other schools. Most of those affected work elsewhere and their roots are not so deep that they cannot be severed. Nor, are they so poor that they cannot make other arrangements (told that most students here was seeking to assign to Lincoln would move out of town, one federal representative was quoted as saying "let's hope that some are too poor to do so").

Tremendously handicapped by the taking of nearly all lands for the proving ground facility, and the subsequent scattering of families during the war years, both Washington and Ozark communities have made good progress in recent years. Washington was quick to take advantage when history is currently an ever-increasing asset to all of Southwest Arkansas. Its Restoration Foundation, generously endowed with funds, and boasting a board consisting of top leaders from three counties, should have a bright future. If its base is not eroded away by the removal of local people.

Currently plans are ready, calling for an additional bond issue for the erection of expanded water facilities, the object being two-fold: (1) to provide sufficient water for sprinkler facilities for Pioneer Washington's projects and (2) to provide water for Negro communities north and south just outside the city limits of Washington. This school order has effectively tabled these plans, as the current situation is not conducive for the voting of an additional bond issue.

The Negro community itself is as much disturbed about this senseless ruling as is the white, for in the long run the negroes will be the greater losers. If for no other reason than that there are more of them.

These students need some support to get back through the schoolhouse door — in Hope.

Astronauts Set Record in Altitude

By RONALD THOMPSON
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Braced for a jolt, the Gemini 10 astronauts rode a fuel-shy spaceship to a world altitude record of 472 miles early today, blasted there by a rocket they caught in a tricky cosmic chase.

The 26-foot Agena rocket's 16,000-pound-thrust engine burst to life, taking off like a shooting star with Gemini 10 firmly latched to one end.

"That was really something!" command pilot John Young declared.

Only 14 seconds long, the ride to heights where man has never dared venture climaxed a long night of successes for Young and pilot Mike Collins. But, success was costly in terms of fuel drained from tiny Gemini's 10's supply.

Collins and Young faced the possibility of having to curb some of their other planned activities during the remainder of the ambitious space mission because so much fuel had been burned the first night.

By HOWARD BENEDICT
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)

Space scientists shuffled priorities this morning to salvage the most significant phases of the Gemini 10 mission, beset by a shortage of spacecraft fuel.

Astronauts John W. Young and Michael Collins, swept through a record-shattering orbit after a successful docking with their Agena rocket target and a hitchhike ride under Agena's power toward the next assignments of their daring mission.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesmen said there would be some revision of the program, but held to the belief major projects would be saved.

Next item on the planned schedule was a descent to a low orbit to intercept the Agena rocket carcass, left in a docking path to provide a second target in the skies.

Rendezvous would be a fuel-consuming maneuver.

In the first eight hours after a perfect beginning, command pilot Young and pilot Collins achieved three spectacular space achievements including an altitude record of 476 miles.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — After racking up three spectacular space achievements in less than eight hours, the Gemini 10 astronauts soared to record heights in their fuel-short orbiting ship today, aiming for a late afternoon space excursion by Michael Collins.

The successes were tempered by excessive use of spacecraft fuel during the final phases of a rendezvous and linkup with an Agena target satellite.

The fuel shortage caused a rearrangement of the flight plan, wiping out two additional dockings planned today and raising a question whether Collins and command pilot John W. Young would be able to rendezvous Wednesday with another Agena left in space after the Gemini 8 flight last March.

Flight Director Glynn Lunney said early today that "we're working on the plan for today, looking at the fuel we have left to see what experiments we can conduct and the exact maneuvers we can make."

Despite the fuel shortage, Young and Collins achieved the major goals of the flight — rendezvous and docking — in the first hours of the flight that started late Monday from Cape Kennedy.

After a thrilling 103,000-mile chase across the skies, Gemini 10 caught an Agena sent up 100 minutes ahead of it, then registered history's second linkup of two space vehicles.

The exercise was climaxed brilliantly when Young and Collins fired the powerful engine of the docked Agena — the first time the rocket of one satellite had been used to maneuver a manned space ship.

For nine startling seconds the Agena spouted a fountain of flame and sent Gemini 10 shooting to a record altitude of 476 miles, eclipsing a 307.5-mile mark held by two Soviet cosmonauts.

Race Unrest Likely to Continue

EDITOR'S NOTE — While Chicago seeks to prevent new violence after last week's rioting by Negroes, the signs point to continuing racial unrest in many U.S. cities. What is he outlootui or.

By DON MCKEE

CHICAGO (AP) — The crackle of flames and gunfire had subsided on Chicago's heavily Negro West Side. But a somber Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was listening to rumblings of racial storms building elsewhere.

"I hate to make this prediction," said King, rubbing his face, haggard from lack of sleep. "But we have to be honest. Every major city is sitting on a powder keg."

King was not alone in his assessment that violence might erupt in the hot summer nights in any one of a dozen or more cities.

"Because no matter what they tell you, everything is not okay in colored town," said a Negro attorney in another city.

The remark was made by Alcee Hastings who doesn't live in Chicago or New York or Los Angeles. He lives in Pompano Beach, Fla., where rioting bands of Negroes battled police less than one month ago.

Similar fears were expressed by many Negroes in other areas, Associated Press interviewers found. Giving weight to such fears were recent outbreaks of violence in such widely separated places as Omaha, Neb., Cleveland, Ohio, and Cordele, Ga.

Hundreds of Negro teen-agers rioted the night of April 11 at a park in Glen Echo, Md., only 10 miles from the White House, and left a trail of property damage and terrified residents on march home.

Summer arrived officially June 21. The night of June 22, looting and vandalism broke out in an East Cleveland area where Negro and white neighborhoods meet. Bands of Negro youths stoned cars occupied by whites.

A 10-year-old Negro boy was wounded when a white man opened fire with a pistol from a passing car.

Whites and Negroes staged a gunbattle the night on June 28 in Cordele, Ga. The July 4 weekend brought violent disorder for three nights in Omaha's predominantly Negro near North Side; it ended with National Guardsmen clearing the streets.

In Des Moines, Iowa, about 200 young Negroes hurled stones and bottles at policemen answering a call at a park July 4. Three days later, a hundred helmeted policemen in Paterson, N.J., quelled a missile-throwing outbreak that followed a "black power" speech by a Negro leader.

Last Saturday a brief, fiery outburst resulted in San Francisco when an off-duty Negro policeman shot and wounded a Negro suspected of attempting an armed robbery. Negroes set seven fires with gasoline bombs and a white ambulance driver was attacked but not hurt seriously.

Progress Is Small in Air Strike

By NEIL GILBRIDE

AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The strike that clipped the wings of five major airlines wore on today after a government spokesman declared 11 days of negotiations "a venture in futility."

"This dispute should have been resolved long ago," added Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds after reporting a new stalemate in negotiations between the airlines and the striking AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists.

But Reynolds called for a new attempt today toward settling the strike which is idling more than 65,000 workers, costing the airlines some $7 million a day and overloading the rest of the nation's transportation system.

"This is not one of the happier ventures in collective bargaining," Reynolds said after dashing his earlier expressions of some progress in Monday's talks.

"Today was a futile effort," agreed chief airline negotiator William J. Curtin.

"We agreed to disagree," said union vice president Joseph W. Ramsey.

Reynolds, the Labor Department's chief troubleshooter in major disputes, flitted back and forth between separate union and airline sessions, then brought the negotiators together in a joint meeting that resulted in the reported stalemate.

Wages, fringe benefits, the length of a new contract and a union demand for a cost of living wage clause are key issues in the talks covering some 35,000 airline mechanics who now earn a top rate of $3.52 per hour. The union is asking a 53-cent per hour increase spread over a 36-month contract. The last reported offer of the airlines was 48 cents over 42 months.

After Monday's talks, Ramsey, the union's chief negotiator, told reporters, "We are right back where we were July 7," the day before the strike began.

"They keep their feet planted in concrete," he added. Curtin countered: "We continue to strive for a noninflationary settlement."

The five struck airlines which carried more than half of the nation's commercial air passengers and freight traffic are Eastern, National, United, Northwest and Trans World.

The struck airlines agreed last August to bargain jointly with the union.

Norway's per capita electric power consumption in 1965 was 11,900 kilowatt-hour units, far more than any other country.

President Encourages Wounded GIs

By KELLY SMITH

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wounded servicemen cheered. Wind whipped across the top deck of the excursion boat. President Johnson, squinting against the setting sun, stopped and said: "Get well, son."

There were tears in the young soldier's eyes, and he turned away. More surged forward, some on crutches, some in uniform, some in bathrobes, to shake the President's hand.

With each Marine, sailor or soldier he stopped to talk to, there was a kind of shyness between the commander in chief and the wounded man. There was the usual "How are you?" and "I am fine." But a poignant hesitation to go further.

"How do you say," asked Marine Pfc. Wesley Johnson, 19, of Louisville, Ky., "that you want to go back to Viet Nam?" He shook hands with the President from a wheel chair.

The President and Mrs. Johnson made an impromptu 40-minute visit Monday night aboard the boat carrying 600 wounded Viet Nam war veterans from six hospitals in the Washington area, and their friends.

The President's visit was unannounced. The Johnsons boarded from a launch as the excursion boat neared the end of a three-hour cruise down the Potomac River to the Mount Vernon area under sponsorship of Secretary of Defense and Mrs. Robert S. McNamara.

There were six bands, four beauty queens, 15 sports personalities, a clan of professional entertainers, pretty high school hostesses, 1,800 fried apples, beer and sunshine.

As Johnson stopped to talk with two pajama-clad soldiers, they pushed their left hands behind their backs. After he left, each brought out a half-emptied bottle of beer and a soggy bathrobe sleeve.

For many, it was the first trip outside a hospital in months. For most, it was the first time to see the President.

"I don't envy the President," said Pfc. Rich Cadiz, 22, of Oceanside, N.Y., "but I wish I could have stayed longer to fight. I wish I could tell him that." Cadiz lost a leg while fighting with the 1st Cavalry in March.

The President and the First Lady stayed aboard the boat, a regular tourist attraction on the Potomac, for 10 minutes after it docked. They were among the last to leave.

They left some tears, a lot of scribbled "LBJ" autographs, and Pfc. Bennie Dawson, 21, of Harriman, Tenn. "They asked me how I was and I said I was pretty sick," Dawson said. He was injured two weeks ago in a mine explosion in Viet Nam.

"But now I feel pretty nice," he added. He went down the gangplank beaming.

"The quest for the Holy Grail really is the search for why you are here on earth — the secret of life," he remarked. "To me life is self-evolution. The important thing is to find out what kind of a human being you are, and whether you are growing — and if not, why not."

Just a few years ago Jim, a lanky, stage-struck young Army veteran from Laurel, Neb., was earning a living shaving off his beard on razor blade television commercials.

Jim is a new kind of hero. He is bubbly-spirited, full of odd enthusiasms, and resembles a gawky college teacher from the Ozark hills more than he does a matinee idol. His wonderfully mobile, leathery face crinkles when he smiles. Just an all-America lad, at 38 still growing up.

The responsibility of sudden stardom has left Jim a bit puzzled.

"Success does change you," he admitted somewhat wistfully. "The job makes the man. And you make more concessions as you grow older. I have become more alone, and yet I desire company more. But I guess that feeling alone is a necessary part of life."

Klein Deals With Dodd Questioned

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Ethics Committee questions Chicago publicist Julius Klein today about his dealings with Sen. Thomas J. Dodd.

Klein, 64, a registered agent for West German business interests, is expected to be the final witness in the initial phase of the committee's investigation into misconduct charges against Dodd.

Dodd planned to keep his old friend at more than arm's length. As chairman of the Senate Juvenile Delinquency Subcommittee, the Connecticut Democrat scheduled a simultaneous hearing on narcotics legislation and did not plan to attend the Ethics Committee session.

The bipartisan Ethics Committee is expected to zero in on a trip Dodd made to Germany in April 1964.

Columnists Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson, who sparked the inquiry, have charged that Dodd was "an errand boy" for Klein and made the trip to help him retain his West German clients.

But in testimony before the committee last month, Dodd said he made the trip for the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee to investigate Soviet terror tactics.

The senator said, however, he was anxious to help Klein because he felt Klein was "the victim of an injustice" due to publicity resulting from an investigation of foreign agents.

In an Associated Press interview in New York Friday, Klein said when he learned Dodd was going to West Germany "I asked him to speak up for me" because of the "headlines" about the probe. Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., conducted as chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

For the stocky, cigar-smoking Klein, today's appearance is the first in Senate investigation since Fulbright's 1963 probe.

At Dodd's request, the Ethics

Committee began its investigation after the series of columns by Pearson and Anderson pictured him as serving as "an errand boy" for Klein in return for a Persian rug and other favors.

Dodd and his wife testified they never received any gifts from Klein except for a cloth table mat worth about $2 sent to them along with a Christmas card in 1948.

The senator acknowledged that on several occasions he had stayed in Klein's hotel suite in New York City and had received campaign contributions from Klein. A Republican, Klein has said he contributed to the campaigns of members of Congress in both parties.

The next round of the committee's hearings is expected to deal with charges that Dodd diverted campaign funds to his own use and with other aspects of his financial affairs. No date has been set.

Russia Reports Black Marketeers

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda, the Communist party paper, reported today that secret police had picked up three accused black marketeers after a hunt of nearly two years. It said two others are still at large.

The paper said the men were part of a ring that made $3 million dealing in knitted goods before it was broken up in February 1964. Nine members of the gang were sentenced to death.

Everybody has their troubles but we really felt sorry for that poor salesman selling burglar alarms. He had all of his samples stolen from his parked car. No doubt it will be as hard to resell his customers on his product as it is for us to sell certain items. For instance...

Evidently we bought too many shorts in sizes 8, 10 and 12. We have them in colors as well as white; they are the very same ones we sold so many of on the first and second reorder. They fit beautifully, they are washable, they give you a neat, trim look and they are reduced to only 1/2 price. If you would like to pick up a bargain to finish up the hot summer, take a look at them.

Last season we ran short on dresses size 16, 18 and 20. This year we have an abundance of them. They are all nationally advertised brands, they are cool, smart, perfect for late summer wear and they are all 1/2 price. If you happen to wear this size, get yours today!

We have a special section in our stores where we show the more expensive dresses. Once a year we clear this completely and NOW is the time. We are selling costume suits, dresses, and ensembles at the 1/2 price. you will not find all sizes in all garments, in fact there will be only one of a kind. But you will like what you see and it is a chance to pick up a really fine garment for a song!

There are other items in this sale, we would rather have you see them than to talk about them. We invite you all to the summer clearance sale at

Luci Johnson Has Picked Wedding Gown

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Luci Johnson has picked floor-length, stemline moire dresses in blending shades of pink, for her 12 bridesmaids, with matching illusion veils that flow to the floor.

She has decided that her high noon church wedding Aug. 6 to Patrick J. Nugent of Waukegan, Ill., will have a pink and white theme. Her own dress, picked weeks ago — an elegant long gown — is being kept secret until the wedding day.

President Johnson, the bridegroom and the 12 groomsmen will wear traditional morning attire — Oxford gray cutaway coats and striped gray and black trousers.

Still to be announced by the White House is the attire of the First Lady, the mother of the bride, Mrs. Johnson; and the gown of the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Gerald P. Nugent.

The White House getting queries about what the guests should wear, said business suits will be appropriate for male guests and informal ensembles will do for the women.

The bridesmaids gowns are the design of Priscilla of Boston, a New York and Boston firm headed by Mrs. James (Priscilla) Kidder, who has specialized in bridal clothes for more than 30 years.

They were picked by practical Luci with two things in mind: they had to be dresses that could be worn again and everything had to be "within a budget the bridesmaids could afford."

In announcing the wedding attire Saturday night, the First Lady's press secretary, Elizabeth Carpenter, said it was traditional for bridesmaids to pay for their own dresses, and Luci's bridesmaids would be no exception. On the question of how much the gowns cost, Mrs. Carpenter dodged with the comment "We don't put a price tag on romance."

The groomsmen, and probably the bridegroom, too, will rent their cutaways. Mrs. Carpenter said she didn't know what the President would do about getting his morning outfit.

The long dresses Luci picked for her bridesmaids have a molded silhouette bodice, easing into a stemline-shaped skirt which flows slightly in the back for comfort in walking. That's important since the bridal party will have to negotiate long flights of steps and a 400-foot aisle in the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, site of the wedding.

The high neckline of the gown has a rolled "wedding-ring" shape which also is carried out on the edges of the semilegth sleeves and the hemline. There are matching fabric buttons for back accent.

Luci's sister, Lynda, 22, the maid of honor, and the matron of honor, close friend Mrs. James Ray of Hale Center, Tex., will wear gowns of pale frosted pink, with their veils in shaded hues of pink.

The gathered illusion—delicate net lace—veils are worn at the back of the head, shown by the designer with a high up-swept hairdo. But Luci's bridesmaids will pick any hairstyles they prefer, Mrs. Carpenter said.

Matching pink shoes go with the costume. They have a tiny front bow and practical 1 1/2-inch low, shaped heels.

The bride's attendants also will wear wrist-length white kid gloves. Pearl earrings will be their only jewelry.

Luci will carry a bridal bouquet of lilies of the valley, greenhouse-grown by White House gardeners. The bridesmaids will have nosegays of lilies of the valley from the White House supply, along with blended pink roses in different shades. They're being designed by White House florists.

Luci had the aid of family friend Stanley Marcus, president of the Neiman-Marcus department store in Dallas, Tex., in picking the bridesmaids gowns and the designer. The gowns will be bought at Neiman-Marcus.

Fashion in the News

By HELEN HENNESSY
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — When you can mix and match a wardrobe with co-ordinate parts that can take you anywhere from the beach to your favorite discotheque, you have the summer clothes problem well in hand.

This season one sportswear firm offers a collection of fabric and color co-ordinated "go anywhere" togs that you can mix and match through the entire summer.

This collection, called "Palm Desert" is in sun and sand colors. A Paisley print that blends all the sunburned desert tones is teamed with solids in mesa brown, pinata beige and sundown orange to play off the Paisley in perfect harmony.

There are Garrison pants, stovepipe pants, bell bottoms and bermudas as well as shells, jackets, blouses, skirts and shifts. There are knits and wovens, easy-care blends, lightweight lawns and textured linen looks.

For week-ending there are the new, low-slung Garrison pants with wide belt and cuffed, straight legs in any of three solid colors. With this you might wear a long-sleeved, printed Ban-lon pull-over or a ribbed poor boy top in contrasting color.

When you're feeling especially western, there's a complete Caballero group in the collection. This includes an embroidered-back bronco shirt in brown with beige or orange and matching back-zipped pants in brown or orange. There is also a concha shell with embroidered hip detail and a variety of other tops.

The Paisley print group offers town looks as well as country style and lets you put together whole outfits in the print or co-ordinate your own print and plain combinations.

And, in addition, there are shifts in solid colors or Paisley print in body lines, A-lines and even one with a dirndl skirt.

These all tie together to take you anywhere on a summer day or evening.

Mascara Removal Hint

Scrub-a-dub-dubbing and getting nothing but dark circles under your eyes? It surely isn't from lack of sleep. When removing mascara from those fluttering lashes don't use soap and water. Try a professional and gentle treatment for those orbs.

Apply mascara-remover on those caked lashes and you'll see amazing results. And no dark circles after all your efforts.

THE KEY to a budget-saving, round-the-clock summer wardrobe lies in mix-and-match co-ordinates such as these print and solid combinations. Trim, low-slung Garrison pants (left) in summer will team up with a barrel-cuffed western shirt in printed voile. For evening discotheque hopping the bare, printed voile tank top (right) tops a hip-high belt above a film of sheer white pleated voile. These summer coolers are from Sporttempo, Inc.

Television and Radio

By RICOU BROWNING (For Cynthia Lowry)

Editor's Note — Ricou Browning is the man in charge of the underwater photography which is a specialty of NBC's "Flipper" series. Here he describes the way he directs his dolphin star — and the stand-ins and doubles — during performances.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — To me, Flipper is a person. He has the instincts, the responses, the behavior pattern, the emotions — notably affection — of a human being.

Flipper's head trainer, Ric O'Feldman, contends that "Anybody who can train a child can train a dolphin," and I heartily agree. It takes as long for me to teach Flipper a trick as it takes me to get the idea across to him as to what I want him to do. And he never forgets. If he learns a trick, and uses it once, he'll do it again on the proper signal six months later.

All the signals used to tell Flipper what to do are done with the hand, underwater and topside. For example, the signal for him to squirt water is to push water in his face. The signal to shake hands is — as with a human being — simply to hold out your hand.

He will perform as well for strangers as he will for his trainer, and responds readily to the human stars in the television series — Brian Kelly and the youngsters Luke Halpin and Tommy Norden. In fact, there's a genuine affection between Flipper and members of the cast.

In training Flipper the most important initial step is to establish communication. Once this is accomplished, it's a matter of "affection training."

Like people, dolphins possess different personalities and character traits, are intelligent in varying degrees. In many years in this field I have never encountered a dolphin I couldn't train.

The first step in training is to encourage the dolphin to eat while in captivity. This may take several days, and requires patience.

Once the animal knows his source of food, the trainer gets into the tank with him, during and after the three-day meals, and establishes physical contact — such as touching, rubbing, petting — so that the dolphin realizes there is no danger.

First, I have the dolphin retrieve various objects thrown into the water. Then I have him retrieve live fish — a rather difficult effort since he naturally is tempted to eat the fish.

After each trick, Flipper is rewarded with both food and affection. He receives a daily average of 12 pounds of fish, plus vitamins.

In training Flipper for work with television cameras, it was essential that he become accustomed to construction noises, light reflectors, camera sounds and other potentially distracting influences. But he learned that fast.

COLLEGE COMPLEX, PARENT STYLE

Dear Helen: Everything I do in school, I do just for one reason: it will help to get me into college.

I don't like this. I'd rather take a few courses I would enjoy, even if they aren't college credits. And I'd like to take some real tough courses that might pull my average down to a low B or C — just because they sound interesting. But I'm not a "brain," my folks point out, and so I'd better play it safe.

Without good grades and extra activities, you don't have a chance at the university they have in mind for me. (My Dad's.)

Whenever I'm elected to an office or join a club or get some kind of recognition, they aren't really glad for me. They just see college that much closer. I don't like this in myself, but I'm beginning to think that way too.

Whatever I achieve, it's for the record, not for the present. After while you get brain-washed.

I've been really giving this a lot of thought lately. When you plan every move so it will get you into a college you may not be qualified for, isn't it the same as a politician using a lot of money and big promises to get him an office that he will only use to make him more dough, not help his country? — Senior

Dear Senior: In a way... yes. But I don't think you'll be this kind of "politician." A high school student with your perception won't ever be brain-washed — you're too aware.

However, you aren't aware of one thing: these achievements you mention may be "for the record" as far as your parents are concerned, but they're plenty "here and now" for you. You feel guilty about them because of your folks' attitude, more than your own.

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Barbara Streisand, returning home from a London run of "Funny Girl," says she plans just a four-city concert tour and "then I'm going to stay home and cook and have a baby."

At the start of "Funny Girl's" London engagement, Miss Streisand canceled a $1-million U.S. tour this fall with the announcement she was going to have a baby. She is married to actor Elliott Gould.

Her abbreviated tour will include Philadelphia; Newport, R.I.; Atlanta, and Chicago.

Vic Damone, only 37, but Singing 20 Years

VIC DAMONE is celebrating his 20th anniversary as a singer — with nightclub appearances and a new recording contract.

His first LP on RCA will be out in November and will contain mostly soft ballads and bossa nova. His first RCA single was "You Don't Have To Say You Love Me," and a second single will come out before November. Damone has been all over the record company lot in his 20 years, albums by him are listed in the Schwann catalog on Columbia, Harmony, Mercury, Warner Brothers and Capitol.

His "You're Breaking My Heart" and "Again" sold a million each. "I Have But One Heart" and "The Street Where You Live" were close.

Vic Damone (still his legal name) in Brooklyn, entering amateur singing contests. "I entered 20 of them or more," he says. "And I never came in even fourth. But Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts" was the big one and I got lucky."

He won it, in 1945, and he remembers what he sang — "Prisoner of Love." Milton Berle heard him on the program and got him his first job, singing in a nightclub named La Martinique in Manhattan, in 1946. He was 17. He changed his name to Vic and added his mother's maiden name, Damone.

Of course, his style has changed. Damone says "When a singer has a style, he's got to have a style. I've got to have a style. I've got to have a style."

He lives in Los Angeles with his second wife, who used to be his secretary. His 11-year-old son is his first wife, Italian actress Pier Angeli, is currently with them. "That court case business over the boy's custody is all finished," he says. "Everybody likes each other."

He speaks English, Italian and French and understands German. He's got a box.

He's got a box. Damone says he's got a box. He's got a box. He's got a box.

Each time he has a new record, he's got a new record. He's got a new record. He's got a new record.

He's got a new record. He's got a new record. He's got a new record. He's got a new record.

Indians Back to Assault for Loop Title

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

In the middle of July, what's more natural than a two-week vacation?

Now that the Cleveland Indians' power structure has returned from its midsummer holiday, Manager Birdie Tebbetts can get back to the business of the American League pennant race.

The Indians continued their sudden assault, tagging the California pitching staff Monday for four home runs in a 6-1 victory. That gave Tebbetts' club 13 homers in two days. Cleveland erupted for nine homers in a doubleheader sweep over Detroit Sunday.

Prior to Sunday, Tebbetts had struggled through two weeks in which his club had managed just four homers and had lost 11 of 12 games.

Then came Sunday's doubleheader sweep in which the Indians smashed nine homers. Monday it was much the same story with all the Cleveland runs resulting from the rested and refreshed long ball.

Rocky Colavito and Larry Brown tagged fourth-inning homers, each good for two runs. Colavito's No. 19 followed Chuck Hinton's walk and Brown's second of the season delivered Chico Salmon, who had walked.

In the seventh inning, Leon Wagner walloped his 12th of the season and an inning later, Max Alvis wrapped up the scoring with his ninth.

Homers also played a major role in the only other American League games played. Boog Powell and Frank Robinson smashed consecutive shots that helped Baltimore whip Chicago 5-3 and Hector Lopez' three-run homer lifted the New York Yankees to a 6-4 victory over Minnesota.

In the National League, the New York Mets swept a doubleheader from Houston 4-1 and 6-3, San Francisco edged Pittsburgh 3-2, Philadelphia shut out Los Angeles 4-0, St. Louis downed Chicago 7-6 and Atlanta nipped Cincinnati 9-8.

Gary Bell hurled a four-hitter for the Indians with the ongo Angel run coming on Jose Cardenal's 10th homer of the season in the sixth inning.

Bell struck out seven and won his 10th game in 15 decisions.

The Indians, who had slipped to fourth place during their two-week slump, climbed back into thirdplace during the two-day power show but remained 10 games back of the front-running Orioles, who showed Chicago some muscle too.

Powell and Robinson rocked Juan Pizarro with a pair of long blasts in a four-run second inning as Baltimore whipped the White Sox. Powell's 21st was a two-run shot which landed on the right center-field roof and then Robinson followed with his 23rd to the bullpen in center field. Both homers were 400-foot blasts.

Powell added two singles and walked twice. Robinson also had a pair of singles.

The Twins had a 4-0 lead against the Yankees for six innings but New York knocked out Mucal Grant with a three-run rally in the seventh. The rally featured a pinch double by Mickey Mantle and a pinch single by Roger Maris, each knocking in a run.

In the eighth, Roy White singled and Cleto Boyer walked in front of Lopez' fourth homer of the season.

Ted Uhlaender and Harmon Killebrew had homered earlier for the Twins who jumped into their lead against New York starter Al Downing.

The victory was the eighth in nine games this season for the Yankees against the Twins.

Giants Edge Pirates and Cards Win

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

"If you're going to relieve," says Lindy McDaniel of the San Francisco Giants, "the only spot is short relief."

McDaniel is a short relief pitcher. So is teammate Bill Henry. But Henry's short relieving and McDaniel's aren't the same. Henry makes an even more minute specialization out of it.

The veteran left-hander displayed his short short relieving Monday night as the Giants edged Pittsburgh 3-2 and moved to within two percentage points of the National League-leading Pirates.

Manager Herman Franks called on Henry in the eighth inning after Roberto Clemente doubled home the Pirates' second run against starter Gaylord Perry. Henry retired Manny Mota on a fly ball, then departed as Frank Linzy came on.

The appearance was Henry's 23rd this season, and his one-out performance was the 10th time he's pitched only one-third of an inning. In fact, in those 23 games, Henry has pitched only 16 1-3 innings. McDaniel and Linzy, on the other hand, have averaged about two innings per appearance.

Henry, however, has allowed only two runs all season so when it comes to short short relief, there aren't many who could top him.

After Henry left in the eighth, Linzy came on and retired Jose Pagan on a foul pop, leaving Clemente at second with the tying run.

In other National League games, Philadelphia blanked Los Angeles 4-0, New York swept Houston for the second straight day 4-1 and 6-3, Atlanta edged Cincinnati 9-8 and St. Louis nipped Chicago 7-6.

In the American League, Baltimore beat Chicago 5-3, Cleveland whipped California 6-1 and New York trimmed Minnesota 6-4.

Larry Jackson stopped the Dodgers on five hits for his fifth straight victory and second straight shutout. Philadelphia, meanwhile, erupted for three runs in the fifth inning, sending Sandy Koufax to his fifth defeat against 11 victories.

New York scored three runs in the eighth inning for the opening-game victory against Houston. Billy Murphy singled in the first run, and Roy McMillan knocked in the other two with a single.

Larry Elliot drove in four runs in the nightcap for the Mets, the last two with a double in the seventh inning when the Mets wiped out a 3-2 Astro lead.

Al Luplow and Ed Kranepool singled in the first two runs of the rally.

Ed Mathews' run-scoring single in the Atlanta eighth snapped an 8-8 deadlock. Felipe Alou and Mack Jones each hit two-run homers for the Braves while Tommy Harper's two-run double in the eighth pulled Cincinnati into the tie.

Byron Browne drove in five runs with two homers for Chicago, but St. Louis got three-run homers from Tim McCarver in the sixth inning and Mike Shannon in the seventh.

Tried to Get Nurses to Resist Killer

CHICAGO (AP) — She tried to persuade the others to resist: They felt it would be safer to go along. As the quiet-spoken intruder led each of her friends to their deaths, she crouched under a bed and prayed.

The consul general of the Philippines said Corazon Amurao gave him this account Monday night of the Chicago massacre of eight student nurses, Miss Amurao was the only survivor.

It was the first account of the night of horror Miss Amurao has given, apart from reports to police which have been largely confidential.

Consul General Generoso P. Provido visited Miss Amurao, 23, an exchange student from his country, in the hospital room where the girl has been confined since the slayings last Thursday.

The only time she has left the room was for a brief visit Monday to the jail hospital where the man suspected of committing the slaughter was under treatment after attempting suicide.

Provido reported the girls as saying, that since the man told them he meant them no harm, "Let's not start anything that will make this one do something crazy."

Ryun Going for Another New Record

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Jim Ryun, at 19 the owner of two world marks and a couple of American records, will be shooting for a fifth one in an international track and field meet this weekend.

Ryun, the Kansas freshman who added a world record 3:51.3 mile to his world 1:44.9 half-mile mark last weekend, will be going for the 800-meter record.

"I've got the half-mile mark and now I'd like to get the other," Ryun said on arrival here Monday from Berkeley, Calif., site of his world record mile.

There was considerable speculation the 6-foot-2 phenomenon would go for the world 1,500-meter mark in Los Angeles, but he quickly squelched it.

"I've run my last mile race this year," he said. The 1,500 meters is about 167 yards short of a mile. He set an American record of 3:36.1 en route to his mile mark last weekend and also holds the American record two miles, 8:25.2.

He erased Peter Snell's world record in the 880-yard run by two-tenths of a second a month ago at the U.S. Track Federation meet in Terre Haute, Ind. No one bothered to clock him at 800 meters, but under the conversion method generally used, he would have broken Snell's record by a tenth of a second.

He will compete officially in the 800-meter run in Los Angeles but another tape will be placed at 880 yards — about five yards longer than 800 meters.

The 800-meter record is 1:44.3. Meet director Glenn Davis has asked officials to have a set of watches and a tape at 880 yards in case Ryun reduces his mark for that distance.

Ondine Is Winner of Sailing Race

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Ondine, a 57-foot yawl, owned and skippered by Sumner A. (Huey) Long of Larchmont, N.Y., was declared the winner of Class A honors in the Bermuda-to-Denmark 3,500-mile yacht race.

Circe, a ketch captained by Carl Hovgard, Greenwich, Conn., was second in the unofficial listings released Monday and Challenge, owned by George F. Johnson, Ardmore, Pa., was third.

Fitzsimmons Award Goes to Mr. Phipps

NEW YORK (AP) — The first recipient of the James E. Fitzsimmons award to "the one who has contributed the most to racing" is Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps, long-time owner of horses.

The award will be presented at Aqueduct race track Saturday to Mrs. Phipps in honor of Fitzsimmons, the famous trainer, whose 92nd birthday would have been on July 23. Fitzsimmons died last spring.

Dickey Has Broken Wrist But to Play

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas tailback David Dickey disclosed Monday night that he broke a bone in his right wrist in the Razorbacks' first spring football game.

Dickey, a 200-pound sophomore from Palestine, Tex., said, "No matter what, it's (the cast) coming off on Sept. 1." That is the date Arkansas opens fall practice aiming at a third straight Southwest Conference title.

Dickey said X-rays taken in Fayetteville following the Red-White game were inconclusive. He said he started working out at Pine Bluff last week with quarterback Gordon Norwood.

"I couldn't snap the ball when I was throwing it," Dickey said. He said he talked with Razorback trainer Bill Farrell and that Farrell made him an appointment with a doctor here.

"This time the X-rays showed a break in a small bone in the wrist behind the thumb," Dickey said. He said the doctor advised him to leave the cast on for six weeks.

Dickey and Bruce Maxwell, a 200-pound sophomore from Pine Bluff, are battling for the starting tailback post.

Urges Boycott of Communist Project

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A Polish archbishop has urged priests to boycott a Communist government project to erect a monument to the late Pope John XXIII, labeling it a move to undermine Roman Catholic unity.

Archbishop Boleslaw Kominek said a ceremony in Breslau next Tuesday to lay the cornerstone of the monument as part of state millennium celebrations "has been organized without knowledge of the Church hierarchy and outside its jurisdiction."

Challenges Mills to Debate

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arthur Mills has challenged Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., to a television debate on the representative's policies.

Arthur Mills is a Democratic candidate for Congressman in the 2nd District. Wilbur Mills is seeking re-election.

"I feel that there should be a complete clarification of his voting record for the benefit of all the people," Arthur Mills said.

Ed Richardson, defensive halfback from Philadelphia, is the lightest man on Penn State's 1966 football team. He's a 160-pound sophomore.

Golf's Putting Leader...

BILLY CASPER is not sneezing. Reputed to be golf's top putter, he's whooping it up after sinking a long putt. Casper, who has a long list of allergies, is scheduled to play in the PGA tournament at Akron, Ohio, despite past problems with Akron's industrial fumes.

...and 'Rushing' Leader

A FULLBACK, YES, a golfer, no. Chipping from behind a tree, Cookie Gilchrist was en route to a golf score that might have been more impressive under "yards gained rushing." At this point he was 45 over par with several holes to go.

ATLANTA AIR ATTACK—Ed Mathews, slugging infielder for the Atlanta Braves, decided to take to the air July 7 as he sailed a paper plane in the general direction of fans in the third base stands at Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles.

Nothing to Sneeze at

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

AKRON, Ohio — (NEA) — Billy Casper, if he is able to meet a "tentative commitment" to play in the Professional Golfers' Association tournament here, had better be ready for some super hospitality.

Upon his arrival for the July 21-24 tournament, he can expect a barrage of questions, such as:

"Is there anything else we can do for you, Mr. Casper?"

"How's the house?"

"How's the wind, the air, the food, the pollen count, the air-pollution index?"

It will be a reception accorded a man who has a long list of allergies which affect his sinus and respiratory system and thus has boycotted tournament golf in Akron since 1962. The fact that Casper is a big name and drawing card for having won the 1966 U.S. Open is almost incidental.

AKRON'S civic pride is at stake.

"I'm sorry, but the atmospheric conditions of Akron just won't allow me to play there any more," Casper told officials when they urged him to play last year in the American Golf Classic at Firestone Country Club, site of this year's Golden Anniversary PGA.

Word got around the city and so this year

AKRON is ready for him. All Casper need do, Akronites feel, is show up.

In fact, conditions for Casper now are so favorable that he is being billed locally as a co-favorite with Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus.

Answering a request, Casper gave PGA tournament director Ed Carter "a list of musts" which would enable him to play in Akron.

The list included a house due south of town that was air-conditioned and had an electric cooking range, an air-conditioned car and arrangements for a supply of Casper's special dietary foods.

"I need air conditioning," Casper said, "to

FAIR DEVICE'S NEW JOB IS HELPING THE RETARDED

UNION GROVE, Wis. (AP) — A device that amused more than a million children at the New York World's Fair has a new career ahead — helping mentally retarded youngsters.

The Wisconsin State Welfare Board has accepted a donation of the "fun machine" that was featured in the Johnson Wax pavilion at the fair, for use in the Southern Colonies Training School here.

It is a walk-through, maze-like toy in which children manipulate cranks and buttons to activate noisemakers, surprise mechanisms and a variety of gears. It also includes distortion mirrors, a colored prism tunnel and a plastic hose "angle."

Hope Families Begin 'Dream Boat' Vacation

Motels and restaurants on the crowded tourist trails of the Far West hold no terrors for four Hope vacationists — they left town last Saturday morning in a leased executive bus which literally “has everything.”

Picture at top left shows the party and their land cruiser: Mr. and Mrs. Bert Rettig at left, and their daughter JoBeth and her husband Frank Baggett. The Rettigs own the Diamond Cafeteria and operate the Diamond Hotel. The Baggetts recently moved from Memphis to Shreveport, where he is an advertising executive with Robert K. Butcher & Associates. During the Rettigs' absence the cafeteria and hotel are being run by Mrs. J. C. Walloch.

The vacation party will be gone two weeks, visiting Carlsbad Caverns, Tucson, Mexicali, Mexico, San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Yosemite National Park, and returning home by way of Las Vegas, Nev., and the Grand Canyon.

Their vehicle is the $15,000 Dodge Motor Home, leased at $300 a week plus their gasoline expense only, from Chuck Hutton Leasing Co, Memphis. The bus sleeps and dines six persons, has its own 110-volt electric generating plant, air-conditioning, and a television set.

Picture at top right shows the interior behind the driver's seat, with the dinette at left which converts to a double bed, the davenport at right which converts to two single bunks, and in the background the kitchen range with refrigerator underneath.

No Action Likely Against Court Justice

By EDMOND LE BRETON
WASHINGTON (AP) — Two committee chairmen indicated today that if any action is taken on a House resolution calling for an investigation of the moral character of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas it will be in the distant future.

Rep. George W. Andrews, D-Ala., introduced the resolution Monday as several members criticized Douglas' marital record. Cathleen Heffernan, 23, became the fourth Mrs. Douglas last Friday.

The resolution, saying Douglas, 67, was divorced three times on grounds of alleged cruelty, in one case with allegations of “personal indignities,” would direct the House Judiciary Committee to investigate his moral character.

The honeymooning justice declined comment. Andrews' resolution was referred to the House Rules Committee headed by Rep. Howard W. Smith, D-Va. He indicated he has no plans for prompt hearings.

Smith said the usual practice is to bring resolutions of this kind before the committee in executive session and vote on whether to proceed further with them.

If the committee should approve the resolution, the proposal would then go to the House for a vote. If the House adopted it, it would become a directive for action by the House Judiciary Committee.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the Judiciary Committee, told a reporter “ordinarily a man's matrimonial ventures are a purely personal matter, but I will be glad to examine Mr. Andrews' resolution and consider what should be done.”

But Celler added, “The matter is far distant from the Judiciary Committee at this juncture.”

The Political Scene Shows Mr. Kennedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost anywhere you look at the present political scene the tangle-haired head of Robert F. Kennedy seems to be a part of the picture.

Glancing around: Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon says he is optimistic about Republican prospects in the fall elections because the Democrats are divided.

He names as one area of division what he calls the rivalry between Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Kennedy.

In New York, hopefuls for the Democratic nomination for governor are wondering what Kennedy, the state's junior senator, may do in relation to the nomination.

In South Carolina, the Republican committeeman, figuring there is anti-Kennedy sentiment among his state's voters, says he thinks his party's chances of beating Ernest F. Hollings, the Democratic nominee for the Senate, are enhanced by the friendship between Hollings and Kennedy.

In Florida, there has been more talk about Kennedy than any other out-of-state political figure. Gov. Haydon Burns, who was beaten in the primary, charged that Kennedy money was aiding his opponent, Robert King High.

Kennedy's name also has come into other primaries, some past and some still ahead, such as in Tennessee and Wisconsin where Kennedy friends are candidates for governor.

There is a tendency for speculation about Kennedy's intentions to feed upon itself and grow accordingly, but fundamentally it is grounded in the expectation among many politicians that Kennedy has presidential ambitions in 1972 if not in 1968.

Few think there is any possibility of Kennedy's challenging President Johnson in 1968. Nixon is one of those who do not rule out that possibility.

Kennedy has said he will support Johnson for re-election, that there is nothing to the speculation he is building a national political machine, or to the reports of his financing some primary candidates.

There is no reason to disbelieve anything in that Kennedy statement.

Yet in the pragmatics of politics, a national political base necessarily takes form if Kennedy friends win key spots around the nation.

And talk of “Kennedy money” is not negated by Kennedy's statement he is not financing any candidate. It is “Kennedy money” in the politician's view if a Kennedy friend contributes it.

Whatever his intentions and ambitions, Kennedy is already a powerful figure on the American political scene.

How powerful he may be by the year's end is wrapped up in the answers yet to come of a couple of other questions.

Has he indeed—as many presume—come to a position where he can handpick the Democratic nominee?

Johnson Would Fire Highway Commission

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Jim Johnson lashed out at the state Highway Commission Monday night and said that if he is elected governor commission members would face the prospect of impeachment if they declined to resign at his request.

Johnson, getting the final week of campaigning off to a fiery start, said he demanded the resignation of the members “because of their continuing policy of double-talk and inaction in the matter of the increased asphalt scandal.”

The seven Democratic candidates for governor began Monday to make their final bids for votes from a record number of qualified voters who go to the polls one week from today to decide the issue.

Johnson said that if the commission members would not resign, he would have five state senators initiate impeachment proceedings against them when the 1967 legislature convenes.

“For years these overcharges have been continuing because of the conspiracy by certain vendors to fix prices,” Johnson said in a speech at Forrest City.

He cited the action of Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma in recovering millions of dollars from asphalt companies doing business in those states in the wake of a price-fixing investigation.

“About all the action we had in Arkansas has been the attempt, by the executive department and the commission, to cover up for each other instead of making a forthright effort to protect the public as each of them was required to do under his oath of office,” Johnson said.

“It's too late now for the Highway Commission to try to wrap the mantle of sanctity about the under the guise of living up to the letter and spirit of the Mack-Blackwell Amendment,” Johnson added.

Meanwhile, Dale Alford went on statewide television and said he was the only Democratic candidate who “can guarantee defeat of the (Republican Winthrop) Rockefeller conspiracy to take over our state.”

Alford asserted that he already had a hard-hitting campaign prepared for a post-primary battle “against the worst threat that has confronted our state since the time of the so-called Reconstruction.”

Alford also proposed to build a low-cost, low-rise bridge across the Arkansas River at every city and town. He promised to make a fourth bridge in western Pulaski County a top priority in his administration.

Frank Holt went on statewide television and reiterated his plan to find $8 million for a stepped-up street and road program without a tax increase.

Holt discussed the matter several weeks ago and fiscal experts in the Faubus Administration said they did not know what Holt was talking about or where the money might be.

Holt, who again did not say where the money would come from, said, “I repeat that my proposal does not involve any extension or increase of public obligations, as some of those who oppose me.”

Holt's speech dealt primarily with financing, highways and industrialization.

At Little Rock, Raymond Rebsamen issued a news release saying he could provide the leadership and guidance to give Arkansas full advantage of the Ozarka Redevelopment Program.

Rebsamen also named Mrs. R. H. Alexander of Scott as chairman of the Women's Division of the Rebsamen for Governor campaign.

Johnsons Attend Church in Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's two daughters, Lynda and Luci, accompanied their parents to Sunday services at St. Mark's Episcopal Church on Capitol Hill.

Afterward, Luci, a convert to Roman Catholicism, went to Mass alone at St. Dominick's Catholic Church.

Luci and Patrick J. Nugent will be married Aug. 6 at the Catholic Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in Washington.

THEY PERIL LIFE TO SAVE LIFE

A century ago, a ship trapped in the storm-tossed North Atlantic too often was lost with all hands. This apparent fate awaited the British vessel “Ayrshire” as she lay helpless off the New Jersey coast in 1850. Badly damaged and buffeted by heavy seas, she was obscured from shore by a blizzard. Her 201 passengers and crew seemed doomed.

Fortunately, a gallant band of rescuers from the Life Saving Benevolent Association of New York was on hand. Using a newly invented lifeboat, the “Francis Life Car,” they soon carried all but one to safety.

A few months before the “Ayrshire” had foundered, the Association had been formed to guard seacoasts, save lives at sea, and honor rescuers. Prime mover behind the Association was the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company, cooperating with leading shipowners and merchants.

The dramatic “Ayrshire” rescue was the first of many acts of heroism at sea logged by the Life Savings Benevolent Association.

In the year following the Association's founding Walter R. Storey Jones, its first president and then also president of the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company, made the initial awards for rescues at sea beyond the call of duty.

The first award was to 66-year old Benjamin Downing and his 16-year old son Benjamin Franklin. Fearing the stormy seas, six men refused to assist in the rescue of two others on a capsized schooner. But, Downing and his son went into the boiling surf and succeeded in rescuing one of the men, despite the fact that the older Downing, a light-house keeper, was lame and had only one arm.

By World War I, safeguarding lives at sea became a responsibility of the U.S. Coast Guard.

Today, the Life Saving Benevolent Association of New York still functions — supporting research, presenting scholarships to the Merchant Marine Academy and donating gifts to lifesaving stations and schools. It continues its annual presentation of decorations and cash awards for heroism in rescuing persons from drowning, adding to its honor list those who “periled life to save life.”

Hope for Best, Expect Worst

In some far-off never-never land all finesses will work. Trumps and side suits will always break and no one will ever ruff one of your top cards. But in this mundane sphere you can only hope for such breaks and had better see what you can do when things don't run so smoothly.

South's jump to three spades was an all-purpose bid. He hoped that his partner would be able to raise him to four. Otherwise he wanted to make things tough for the opponents.

North did raise to game and after West opened the ace of hearts South was looking at 10 sure tricks but it didn't take long for one of them to vanish into thin air. It seems that West continued with the queen of hearts and South played dummy's king. East ruffed. South overruffed but that heart trick was gone.

Strangely enough South managed to make the contract after all. He drew trumps and led a diamond to dummy's ten and East's jack. East returned a diamond to his partner's ace and West led out a high heart.

South ruffed and ran off all his trumps. He discarded down to the queen of diamonds and king-six of clubs

East had to hang on to the king of diamonds and was squeezed out of his club stopper.

A mighty nice recovery. Of course East and West helped. Had either one led a club when they were in with the diamonds they would have broken up the squeeze but it was only fitting for both sides to go wrong.

Rudolf Hess —A 4-Power Prisoner

By TOM A. CULLEN
European Staff Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LONDON—(NEA)—Rudolf Hess, one-time deputy fuhrer of Nazi Germany, is now a gaunt, half-crazed wreck of 72. Soon he will be the only prisoner left in the Spandau prison of West Berlin, and there is a growing feeling here that he should be released.

"Had Hess been a murderer he would long ago have been released under present British law," the Sunday Express editorialized recently. "Now, surely, if the word has any meaning, is a time for mercy."

Bushy-browed Hess, who was then Hitler's right-hand man, electrified the world in May, 1941, when he dropped by parachute from the skies over Scotland on a lunatic "peace" mission to Britain. His plea to Britons: Join Hitler in a crusade against Russia.

The deputy fuhrer was locked up in the Tower of London for his pains, later brought to trial at Nuremberg with the other Nazi war criminals and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Since then American, British, French and Russian soldiers have taken turns in guarding Hess and two other Nazi prisoners at Spandau on a monthly rota basis. It is one of the few remaining instances of four-power co-operation in Germany.

But the world's conscience has also been slightly uneasy about Hess. The feeling is that Hess is crazy, and should therefore be cared for in a mental hospital. Even if he were not crazy back in 1941, his subsequent imprisonment in conditions that amount to solitary confinement would have driven him mad, it is argued. But all signs point to Hess being an advanced schizophrenic.

His lawyer, Dr. Alfred Seidl, based his plea on legal, rather than medical grounds, in recently appealing to the four heads of state for Hess' immediate release. Hess was given an illegal life sentence under a retrospective law, according to Dr. Seidl.

What makes the situation urgent is that the only other Nazi war criminals at Spandau—Baldur von Schirach and Alfred Speer—are due for release on Sept. 30, having served their 20-year sentences.

This means that Hess will soon be the only prisoner in a red-brick fortress that was built to house 750. It means also that he will be the world's most expensive jailbird.

Month by month, the Americans, the British, the Russians and the French take turns in guarding Spandau in what has become a sort of international quadrille. On the first of the month, the duty power marches in with its cooks, its medical staff, its commandant and its platoon of soldiers to man the prison walls, altogether 250 men.

On Thursdays, the ruling governor gives a prison lunch in his mess for officials of the other three military governments. Invitations during French month are particularly sought after.

This elaborate rigamarole has been increasingly criticized here as costly and inhuman. There have been questions in the House of Commons, newspaper editorials, and such anti-Nazi historians as H. R. Trevor Roper and A. J. P. Taylor have supported the release of Hess.

The Russians are blamed here for keeping Hess in prison, not so much from anti-Nazi conviction as from the desire to maintain a foothold in West Berlin. As one of the last vestiges of four-power rule, Spandau is important to the Russians, and they are not expected to relinquish it willingly as long as Hess lives, which may be for another 10 or 15 years.

Originally Spandau housed seven Nazi war criminals who were flown there in 1947 from Nuremberg in an Allied aircraft. Since then the two admirals—Karl Doenitz and Erich Raeder—have been released, as have Hitler's Economics Minister Walther Funk, and Foreign Minister Baron von Neurath.

For the remaining three prisoners living conditions have gradually improved over the years. The trio are still addressed by their prison numbers, rather than their names, but they may talk to each other. They are allowed to receive newspapers, and a Dutch barber shaves them every other day.

Albert Speer, Hitler's minister for rearmament, has weathered prison life the best. Now 60 years old, he gardens busily and designs holiday bungalows on a drawing board in his cell.

Bad luck has dogged Baldur von Schirach, 58, the Hitler youth leader. Last year he had an eye operation and is now nearly blind. Before that he was divorced by his wife, who has since changed her name.

As Nazi governor of Vienna, Von Schirach once boasted that he would replace all Christian crosses with swastikas. A crucifix is now prominently displayed in his cell.

But Rudolf Hess is the real problem. The former deputy fuhrer refuses to get up some mornings, complains constantly of aches and pains.

Even before the war, Hess reportedly was a hypochondriac. In the 19 years he has been at Spandau, Hess has steadily refused to see his wife or his son, though he writes to them every week. His reason: the parting after such visits would be too painful. His wife, Ilse, runs a small guest house in the Bavarian mountains and claims to be in telepathic contact with her husband.

After Sept. 30, when his two Nazi cronies are released from Spandau, Rudolf Hess will be the loneliest man in the world. Many Britons feel that his punishment has gone on long enough.

As Oxford historian A. J. P. Taylor expresses it, "We have modelled our behavior on the Nazis. We have turned a human being into a plaything of political calculation."

IN OR OUT?—Rudolf Hess, once one of Hitler's top aides, soon will be the only prisoner in West Berlin's Spandau prison. Now 72, Hess is shown when he began his term nearly 20 years ago. Now Europe wonders if he should be kept or released.

Defending The Underdog

Within hours after Lee Harvey Oswald's arrest in Dallas, the president of the local bar association went to his jail cell to offer legal assistance.

At that moment, Oswald was probably the most hated man in the country. Yet he was certainly entitled to whatever protection was guaranteed him by the laws of the land.

And so is every man, however unpopular he may be. The offer of legal help to Oswald was in a tradition that goes back to the nation's earliest days, when John Adams defended the British soldiers who took part in the Boston Massacre.

Nonetheless, it is often true that an unpopular defendant does face special difficulties in finding an attorney to represent him. The problem arises most frequently in cases involving civil rights, heinous crimes, repugnant personalities, or touchy politics—either on the left or right.

Why are many lawyers reluctant to take such cases? No doubt one reason is the personal aversion they may feel to the character or ideas of the defendant.

But a more basic reason is the very real danger of "guilt by association." All too quickly, people jump to the conclusion that a lawyer and his client are birds of a feather.

No other profession is similarly afflicted. People ascribe no wrong to the minister who gives a thief comfort or to the doctor who removes a thief's appendix. But they often take it for granted that the lawyer of a thief, if not actually dishonest himself, is at least inclined in that direction.

What they forget is the nature of a lawyer's function. His task is not to judge his client. His task is to present his client's side of the argument as convincingly as he can—while the prosecutor does the same for the opposing side.

It is upon this clash of opposing arguments that our legal system relies, above all else, to produce justice. It is this time-tested technique, known as the "adversary system," that is the heart of due process of law.

A famous lawyer was once reproached for defending anarchists. He replied:

"I do not defend anarchy. I defend the Constitution."

FAN FACTS TO HELP YOU CHOOSE

Cool air around the clock adds to carefree living, especially in warm weather, local merchants emphasize. In fact, good ventilation and circulation of air in your home or apartment is important every season of the year. If you're concerned about an air-cooling plan, here are helpful tips from General Electric Housewares where portable fans are made.

Review your living space and areas to be cooled. Today's pattern of living calls for convenience, so consider the ease that comes with the portability in an electrically reversible fan which can be moved and used anywhere in your home. The new 20" fan permits you to draw air in or blow air out without the bother of having to take the fan out of the window and turn it around. If your windows are larger than 20" wide G.E. solves the problem with a handy accessory—adjustable window mounting panels which can be attached to a window up to 38 inches wide.

Advantages of a portable electrically reversible fan are many: as a circulating fan on the floor or a table, it will circulate a full 4000 cubic feet of air per minute; it will ventilate your room for fresh air change; it can be placed on a table close to a fire or on a small sash window, or on the inside window sill if it is wide enough. You'll delight in the portability.

CALL BOX

FIRST IN THE NATION with a new highway emergency call system will be Maryland, which is installing 324 call units on 43 miles of the Capital Beltway, an interstate superhighway ringling Washington, D. C. A driver in distress will be no farther than a quarter of a mile from one of the bright yellow boxes topped by radio antennas. Aid can be summoned simply by pushing a button for police, ambulance, fire or repair service. The Maryland State Police receive the signal. Cost of the initial system, scheduled for completion in September, will be $379 million.

THE DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Farm Animals Spread Most Undulant Fever

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—Through a blood test and a skin test four years ago my doctor made a diagnosis of undulant fever. Is there any danger of spreading this disease to my family or friends?

A—Human carriers of undulant fever or brucellosis do exist. They shed the germs in their urine, but transmission of the disease from one person to another is extremely rare. The natural reservoir of infection is in cattle, sheep, goats and hogs.

Complete recovery is the rule and treatment for more than a year is rarely necessary. Good results have been reported in victims who have been treated with a combination of two antibiotics, streptomycin and tetracycline.

Q—Is it true that hamsters can spread undulant fever? Can the germs be transmitted from them to human beings?

A—Undulant fever is a disease of farm animals. The human victims are usually farmers, veterinarians, meat packers or drinkers of unpasteurized milk. I have never heard of a case being transmitted by a hamster. If it occurs it must be extremely rare.

Q—A recent article stated that 3 per cent of the population has undulant fever. What are the symptoms of this disease?

A—The proportion of the population with undulant fever has dropped with the almost universal use of pasteurized milk and milk products in this country. The disease involves the entire body and starts, often insidiously, with headache, aching in the joints, chills, fever and easy fatigability. In some victims there is a dry cough and in some there is vomiting. Since these symptoms are common to many other generalized infections, the diagnosis must be based on laboratory tests.

Q—What forms of insanity are inherited? Can they be cured?

A—Since the proportion of persons who have schizophrenia (dementia praecox or split personality) and manic-depressive spells with relatives who also have these diseases is higher than the proportion of such persons in the total population, a hereditary factor is presumed in these diseases.

In the treatment of schizophrenia shock therapy, psychotherapy, tranquilizers and surgery (frontal lobotomy, in which white nerve fibers in the frontal lobe are cut) may all be beneficial but they rarely bring about a complete cure. Persons in an acute manic (highly excited) state often have to be restrained. When this phase subsides, a severely depressed inactive state may follow during which efforts must be made to prevent suicide. In these persons, also, treatment may be of some benefit but a cure cannot be guaranteed.

Please send your questions and comments to Wayne G. Brandstadt, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Brandstadt cannot answer individual letters he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

PLANNING AHEAD

NEENAH, Wis. (AP)—A local firm reports that it is getting its material ready for orders expected 33 years from now.

Seedlings planted this year, says A.G. Sharp, senior vice president of Kimberly-Clark, will by 1999 be harvested and used to produce books, newspapers, tissue products, etc. Paper production by then is expected to be about triple its current output, with Americans using 140 million tons of paper a year. Contrast that with the 50 million tons for 1966.
